Great Meeting of Educators.

Two thousand school-teachers of Missouri assembled at St. Louis the past week to attend the annual meeting of the Missouri Educational assocation. The work of the convention consisted largely in a comparison of methods and ideas of theory and practice. Little time was taken up with educational "fads" or in agitation to secure legislation. A resolution was adopted for compulsory educatioin, which all but passed the last legislature. It is the sentiment that such a law would do much to relieve the condition of the children in the cities of the state. If their parents are compelled to send them to school for a reasonable time they cannot be placed in factories or sweat shops at an age when such work stunts them mentally and physically. Addresses were made by noted educators in and out of the state, notably David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford university, who talked on "What the Twentieth Century

ONLY A MARE'S-NEST.

Tariff Reform Organ Makes a Discovery That Is Strange and Truly Startling.

Not long since the treasury depart-ment, in the case of certain imports of steel, ruled that duty must be paid books, State Superintendent of Pubupon them not at the price at which they were invoiced, but at that charged to domestic consumers in the country from which they were shipped. Obviously, such a ruling had to be made, otherwise it would be impossible to prevent undervaluation. The justice of the method was recognized by the representatives of the allied powers when they decided that the customs tax to be collected by the Chinese should be based upon the value of the articles at the place of import, and not upon prices which might be made for the purpose of capturing trade or which were fixed low in order to defraud the government, says the San Francisco Chronicle. But now comes the Boston Herald with a charge that the ruling demonstrates that the American protective tariff is in effect an export bounty system. It says: "If the construction of our treasury department is to be depended upon and is to be applied to our own practices, then the congress of the United States is paying export bounty to certain American industries, a practice which may be open to consti-tutional objection." It adds: "Whether it would be possible, if the United States courts should decide that the treasury department was correct in its construction concerning this Russian proceeding, to bring our own beneficiaries by government bounty before the courts, as obtaining unconstitutional privileges through congressional action, is a question which at least will bear careful considera-

If the question is carefully considered, certain facts will be ascertained which the Herald seems to have completely overlooked in its anxiety to make a point against American manufacturers. Foremost among these is that its assumption that the practice | cial says: of forcing out goods at lower prices is one peculiar to protective countries is erroneous. It is as much in vogue in free trade Great Britain as in the United States. There are few manufacturers in that country who will not make sacrifices to establish trade with foreigners, and in doing so they follow practice which is merely an extension of the rule adopted in the conduct of domestic business of getting rid of surpluses with as little disturbance to the local market as possible.

If it is right and expedient for a merchant who sells muslin at ten cents'a yard on Saturday to one set of customers, to turn around and sell muslin of the same quality for seven cents a yard on Monday, then it is not immortal or improper for manufacturers to resort to the same course. The circumstances are precisely analogous. In each case the aim is precisely the same. The merchant, after selling all he can at tea cents a yard, tries to get rid of the remainder of his stock at seven cents a yard. The American manufacturer endeavors to get all he can for his product in this country, and ample of enterprising department says the Albany Journal. stores of unloading excess stocks as quickly as possible. attest, and, being true, the people have a right to account themselves prosperous, no matter how domestic prices may compare with those which obtain in other countries. The only persons who have anything to complain of are the foreigners who are the victims of the dumping process, and they will be fully justified in taking any steps which may put an end to the practice. That they are likely to do so is suggested by the vigorous objections to dump-ing which find their way into print in free-trade England. Although the gospel of cheapness is preached by British economists, it is noteworthy that they are beginning to realize that when it obtains at the expense of the domestic producer it is dearly paid for by all classes. Production is the mainspring of prosperity, and anything that strikes a blow at it must prove detrimental to a country. This is a truth which sophistry canit is nevertheless clearly proves destructive to domestic industry is undesirable. It is only the Leader.

LIVING NOW COSTS LESS.

Prosperity and Plenty Is Robbing the Democrats of Their Party War Cry.

Much has been said recently of the high cost of living, and it is true that as far as prices for the necessary commodities are concerned 1902 has been a record-breaking year. But there have been causes for this in natural conditions entirely apart from the manipulation of syndicates, to which the unthinking have been disposed to attribute the advance in prices, says the Troy Times.

Last year's short corn crop was one of the principal causes producing the advance in the prices of commodities. This advance was felt not only in cereals, but also in the prices of cattle and meats. In July, 1901, the index prices of commodities in proportion to consumption stood at 91.509. When the damage to the corn crop became fully known the index number rose to 95.330. In May of this year the advance in the prices of cattle and meats as well as cereals sent the index up to 102.239.

But the enormous cereal crops of this year have sent this representative figure from 102.239 in May to 99.579 November 1. The falling temperature and its effect on eggs, milk and other articles caused the slight advance to 100.449 on December 1, but this figure was lower than at the corresponding date in 1901, which, when the prices of coal owing to the strike are taken into consideration, is a favorable show-

With the large corn crop and the reduction in the price of ments, which has already been announced from Kansas City, and with the better supply of coal which may reasonably be expected, now that mining is resumed in full, there is reason to believe that the cost of living will steadily decline, and that, when the great prosperity and activity of the country are taken into consideration, prices will not be a cause for pessimistic criticism. The New York Commer-

"Altogether, it would seem that the in-dex number will not again rise to the figures of last spring. While it cannot be hoped that the cost of living will be reduced to the figures for 1896 and 1897—in-deed, such a decline would not be natural in view of the general prosperity and bustness activity existing throughout the country-yet it can be reasonably excountry—yet it can be reasonably ex-pected that the cost of living will at least be reduced to the level of 1888 and 1839. When the general conditions existing during the two periods are remembered such a decline would make a decided-ly favorable comparison for the present period of prosperity."

This result more role the demo-

This result may rob the demo cratic party of a war cry, but it will be pleasing to purchasers of commodities, and will help to prove that the reasons assigned by those who, from political or other motives, attack the present conditions in this country have been, voluntarily or ignorantly, deceptive.
